

В статье проведены исследования опыта внедрения и развития информационно-коммуникационных технологий в деятельность органов местного самоуправления в Республике Татарстан, обеспечивающих информационное взаимодействие между органами государственной власти, органами местного самоуправления, организациями.

In the article introduction and development of informational and communicational technologies are investigated in activity of local governments in the Republic of Tatarstan. During the investigation conclusion was made that the operating systems of informational and communicational technologies provide information for exchanging between public authorities, local governments, the organizations which allows to reduce terms of consideration of documents in activity of local governments in the Republic of Tatarstan.